

NOTICE OF LECTURE RECORDING

To all users of this venue

The University of Oxford is committed to enhancing the student learning experience. It is with this purpose in mind that the University enables the recording of lectures and seminars, to be accessed privately via Canvas or WebLearn for study purposes.

Please be aware that the lecture you are attending may be recorded in audio or video format. This recording may be used by the University of Oxford for educational purposes and via Canvas or WebLearn by students on the course for learning reinforcement. The recordings are stored in the cloud in accordance with the Data Protection Act 1998.

At no time will audience members be intentionally filmed or recorded. Audio pickup is limited by the reach of the boundary microphone in place on the desk; this may include some questions from the audience.

For more information about lecture recording at the University, please consult the University's Lecture Recording Policy.
